Feminist cabaret goes to festival

"A dazzling cabaret which is glamorous, funny and feminist and aimed at a shop floor/mop floor audience."

So says London Time Out magazine about "Floor Show" which you can see alongside all the other exciting events at this year's Peoples' Festival at Alexandra Palace on June 18.

Monstrous Regiment, one of Britain's best-known feminist touring theatre companies, succeeded in breaking through that oldest male bastion, the cabaret, and produced a show which has split sides at engineering union conferences, art centres, colleges, Morning Star events, in fact all over the place.

This is the last chance to see this highly acclaimed show on the theme of women at work, in shop, office, factory and home.

The versatility and music ability of this talented group of actors will astound you. Don't miss it.

Information and tickets available from Festival Organiser, 16 King Street, London, WC2.
